Shower in The Offing

To speed up the finding of homes for babies awaiting adoption, Children's Home Society has taken on the job of furnishing clothing and layettes for the delivery of baby to a foster home for care until adoption. Children's Home Society's

'Stork Express' Flies South

The "Stork Express," a program furnishing clothing for babies awaiting adoption, which has been in operation in Oakland for 15 years with great success, is now being inaugurated by the Children's Home Society in the southland.

Torrance's Sir Beaumains chapter of the Children's Home Society will honor associate members at a shower for babies awaiting adoption on March 10. The event will be held at the Western Federal Savings and Loan Bldg. at 7:30 p.m.

The shower will make available garments for the infants and help instigate the new service, Stork Express.

Volunteer workers will be authorized to pick up new born babies at local hospitals, dress the baby, sign release papers, and deliver the baby to a foster home, where it will be cared for until adoption. Each baby is dressed in new clothes and provided with a layette.

Eight auxiliaries in the Long Beach Council will aid in this service, relieving social workers of this task allowing them more time for case work, thus speeding up the placement of babies. During 1968, 1,903 children were placed in foster homes, an impressive number considering the limited group of social workers.

Anyone wishing information on the Stork Express Shower to be given by the local chapter is asked to call Mrs. David Turnage.
